A lady with heightened color and angry eyes swept into the private office of the proprietor of a big retail store on Fourteenth street the other day, with the complaint that one of the saleswomen had treated her rudely. The merchant smiled wearily and, promising to inquire into the matter, bowed the lady out.

"Now, there's a case in point," said the merchant to an inquiring visitor.

"It may throw some light upon the subject of your errand—the insolence of clerks. Here John"—to a porter—"ask Miss Black to come up."

Presently a well-appearing but tired-looking salesgirl came into the private office. The merchant's face was like a stone.

"Well, Miss Black"—and his voice was like the cold, gray day out of doors —"what is this complaint I hear about you?"

"Mrs. Brown? A lady in sealskin;

even voice.
The merchant nodded.

The merchant nodded.

"She was insolent to me," continued the girl. "Insulting, I should say. She has an idea that shop girls are slaves. She and I are old friends. We worked at the same counter for two years before she married Brown, the builder."

"That will do, Miss Black. I am satisfied. Thus, you see," he continued when the girl had gone, "the fault is on both sides. The saleswoman cannot bring herself to believe that she is a machine incapable of feeling affront; nor can the customer leave her thoughts of social distinction in her carriage ontside.

It wasn't an accident, though Backus may have believed it so, but he resolved to punish the wretch dreacfully by slipping the small coin back into his own pocket.

The Republicans of Washoe, proud of the past and hopeful for the future, heartily endorse the platform and nominees of the National Republican Convention, as adopted at Chicago, and the Republican State Convention at Winnemucca, and pledge a rousing majority for Harrison and Morton and Protection, and Murphy and Bartine and the ticket nominated by this Convention. We demand legislation from both Government and State in regard to irrigation, and for the improvement of our natural waterways, as well as for the storage of water, whereby the natural advantages of this section can be improved to their fullest capacity. We demand the most rigid economy in State and County affairs, and the establishment of the State's expenses upon such a basis ment of the State's expenses upon such a basis in State and County affairs, and the establishment of the State's expenses upon such a basis as will secure good government at the lowest rate of taxation. PLATFORM AND RESOLUTIONS
The following platform and resolutions were adopted by the Republican State Convention, which reduces the price of labor and property enriches the creditor, impoverishes the debtor, and paralyzes industry and enterprise.

That the present financial system of the United States, which increases or diminishes the circulating medium at the pleasure of the manipulators of the national barks, without regard to the increase of population or the wants of the people, and which recognizes gold alone as the standard of value, and places in the hands of the Treasury Department all the revenue of the Government to speculate with in bonds and loan to the national banks without interest, is subsersive of the rights of the people, oppressive, unjust and should be repudiated. That a financial policy whereby both gold and silver shall form the basis of circulation, whether the money used by the people be coin, or coin certificates redeemable in coin, or both, as convenience may require, is imperatively demanded.

That the attempt to substitute national bank notes, costing the Government millions of dollars annually, for free silver, costing nothing, is an outrage upon the reople; that the money ring or trust, which has unsuped the sovereign power of the Government to issue money, and which has fraudulently demonatized silver and seized the revenues of the Government for private speculation, shocks the moral sense of the people and destroys respect for gove nment and law. We demand that this ring, or trust be destroyed, and equal rights be restored to all the people.

We charge that President Cleveland is the willing tool or agent of a powerful money ring, which fattens on the subsidies of the Government, makes war on silver issue a its paper currency at the expense, of the Government, borrows the revenues raised by taxation and uses them without the payment of interest, contracts the currency to enhance the value of bonds, and enriches neares, while it depresses the price of labor and property.

That we favor the nomination of no man for President who is personally interested national banks or the bonded indebtedness of

We demand in behalf of our various industries the retention of the duties on lead borax, sods, hides and leather, and to restore the tariff of 1857 on wool.

RESOLVED, That we recognize the right of labor to organize for its lawful protection We favor the appropriations by Congress for hydrographical and topographical surveys in the State, to the end that the waste waters may be preserved for the purpose of irrigation.

IX. We favor the granting to Nevada of all Government land within the State for the purpose of providing means for irrigation and other improvements.

we favor the reduction of the reasony surplus by the payment of pensions to I nien soldiers, their widows and orphans, the improvement of rivers and harbors, the building of defenses for the sea coast, the erection of public buildings, the creation of an avy, the purchase of bonds and the repeal of the internal revenue iswa taxing tobacco.

of the internal revenue laws taxing tobacco. XI.

It is the duty of this State to maintain free, non-sectarian schools in the rural and sparsely settled districts, as well as in towns and thickly populated sections, and that such division of the school money shall be made as will furnish the means of education to all children of the State.

XII.

We are in favor of reopening the Carson Mint for coinage and raising the wages of its employes to the standard paid by the last administration.

publican State Convention, which convened at Winnemucca on the 15th instant;

The Republicans of the State of Nevada, in Convention assembled, again express their loyalty to the principles of the Republican party, which have made this country so great and prosperous during the last quarter of a century.

RESOLVED, That the question of a machient supply of circulating medium to maintain a permanent range of the price of laby and property is the most important political question awaiting solution by the American people.

ness of the United States, but we demand a candidate who is free to do justice to all the people of the country—the poor as well, as the rich.

That the trick of the President and his advisers by which they prevented a vote in the House of Representatives on the Beck silver amendment to the Bond Purchase bill, equals the villainy of the secret and fraudulent demonetization of silver in 1873.

II.

RESOLVED, That we are in favor of the protection of home industry, and that the laborers of this country have a right to all the work required to aupply the people of the United States, and that we are in favor of high wages, and to that end will protect the wage-workers from competition with the cheap labor of other lands.

RESOLVED, That the policy of the Government should be inaugurated and established by the p ople turough their representatives in both Houses of Congress, and not by the President or money trust, of which he, either as agent or head, is most active in defending.

III.

We charge President Cleveland with violating every promise he made in favor of civil service reform, with crippling the mail service, with refusing to sign necessary bills for the improvement of rivers and harbors, with using the power of his administration to prevent appropriations for navy and coast defenses, with attenuting to destroy the protective tariff, with courting the good will of other nations at the expense of the citizens of the nited States, and with joining the foreign bondholders to demonetize silver and destroy the industries of his own country, and for the reduction of the wages of the Mint employer at Carson, for closing the Carson Mint when it was not only self-austaining but a source of revenue to the Government, for his contemptuous vetoes of bills for the restriction of immigration by which he everlaged condition of the base of the late of disabled solders and saliors, and for failing to construct the Government building at Carson as required by law.

We are in favor of the absolute exclusion of the labor marke

Certainly the tide of affairs is setting strongly in that way. The same thing applies to Nevada. With water our possibilities are great, and it is but a question of time when capital will see the opportunity now idle.

IF General Harrison makes many more such speeches as the one he delivered to the Michigan and Ohio delegations on Thursday, says the Salt Lake Tribune, the demand on the part of the Democratic press to have his "platitudes" stopped, will grow louder and louder. The queer thing about his talk is that there is no easy way to behind him and there is no good way to open them. Notice the way he closed the Thursday speech way he closed the Thursday speech by the reference to the Michigan men on the battle field of Resaca. It was the narration of an incident calculated to kindle the pride of the Michigan men. But just as plainly shines through it the fact that the General himself was there, that he was in that charge and that he returned from that "bloody hillside." And that is the kind of men that other men turn to, and the life it proposed to deal with a tip proposed to deal with men turn to, and the life from the House bill in the fact that it proposed to deal with men turn to, and the louse bill in the fact that it proposed to deal with men turn to, and the louse bill in the fact that it proposed to deal with the meeting that the Car Employes Association desired to see him on official business. A FIVE-COLUMN letter from Carl Schurz, written from Keil, Germany, says he goes as far as Cleveland's severest critic among the friends of reform, in condemning his concessions to the spoils element in the Democratic party, and that he cannot join in any of the excuses or palliations which have been offered for them. "But," he says, "we are not excused from doing our duty as citizens and voters, if we cannot have an ideal party or an ideal candidate;" indicating that he is going to give Cleveland a passive support. Chief Justice Fuller Takes the Oath of Office and His Seat on the Bench.

The Senate Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON Oct. 8.—The Sen-ate Tariff bill being under consideration to-day, Senator Allison said: There was something which ought to be made clear in the bebe presented. One was that the Senate proposed to reduce the revenue between $65,000,000 or $70,-000,000. This was the first chance which the Senate had had to coution of revenue since the revenue of 1883. The House had occupied The San Francisco Mining and eight months in the consideration of the question, but within a little portance of water supply in a land over 60 days the Senate Committee on Finance had produced the bill now up. The House had spent eight months not for the purpose of strengthening the industries of the country, but for the purpose of jured. greatly disturbing those interests. He regarded a reduction of from $60,000,000 to $70,000,000 in the

ter engineering, it is doubtless true revenue as being as great a reduction with the revenue as being as great a reduction as could be safely made, and therefore he trusted that no amendment would be adopted looking to a greater reduction. He calculated, from the report of the Secretary of the Treasury for the first quarter of the present fiscal year, that there would be a reduction of $8,000,000 in the receipts from imports this year as compared with last year, and a reduction of $17,000,000 as compared with the Secretary's estimate. Taking all the revenues of the Government for the first quarter of the current fiscal year, they had fallen off $5,-000,000, as compared with the first quarter of last year. He made this statement for the purpose of shewing that the enormous surplus in the Treasury was not likely to increase by anything that was to occur during the present fiscal year. By the provisions of the Senate Tariff bill there would be no surplus revenue, unless the Sinking Fund for this year was left entirely out of consideration. The Senate bill contemplated and it might as well be understood in the beginning—that for the cur-rent fiscal year, and the fiscal years that are to follow immediately, there was not likely to be a surplus beyond the amount necessary to redeem the 4 1-2 per cent. bonds falling due October 1, 1891. He could not understand why it was that the surplus of $96,000,000 was cent. bonds that were presently to be paid off by the Government.

try in the county.

Referring to the question of tobacco, Allison said that the only difference between the House Bill and the Senate bill with regard to tobacco was that the Senate bill had made a reduction of $1.50 per thousand on manufactured cigars and also took off the tax of $1 on retail dealers in tobacco. The House bill reduced the sugar duty 18 per cent. and the Senate bill 50 quate to accommodate the crowd. per cent. Even with the latter reduction of duty on sugar, it would remain at 41 per cent. ad valorem. Sugar was as essential in every household as bread, and if there was any article that should have a low rate of duty imposed on it it was the article of sugar. He believed that whatever encouragement there should be for the production of sugar from sor-ghum or beets, it was still left in the fair protection given by the Sepate bill. It had been the boast Senate bill. It had been the boast of the Democratic party that it had reduced duties on the necessities of life, but what was a greater necessary of life than sugar, and yet the House bill only proposed a reduction of existing duty on sugar

The Chicago Street-Car Str ke. CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The North Side cable line commenced operaations about 4 o'clock this morning by starting a number of oldtime horse-cars from various barns and carrying twenty policemen on each car. These were preceded by patrol wagons carrying armed policemen. There were but few passengers, the public preferring to patronize a throng of vehicles. Cries of "Scabs!" "Scabs!" greeted the cars as they moved along. At the corner of Clark and Washington streets the driver loosened the brakes, letting the car run upon the horses, breaking their hind feet, and they had to be shot. Near the limits on North Clark street six cars came along bunched together and when near the barns crowd made a desperate rush for the cars, but were repulsed by the police. The crowd then yelled the drivers to abandon their posts and after some hesitation they left the cars and were carried off upon the shoulders of the strikers amid great cheering.

He argued that the effect of the House bill in regard to the sugar schedule would be to legislate $6,000,000 a year into the pockets of the Sugar Trusts, or 12 per cent. on their capital, and to take that amount out of the pockets of the people; and yet the Republican party is denounced, and this substitute is denounced, as favoring trusts!

A Brave Lad.

A few days ago Herman Severe, boy 14 years of age, living six miles south of Crichton, Idaho, had an encounter with a wildcat while on his way home from school. The brave little fellow hurried to his home, procured a shotgun, loaded one barrel, then went out to meet his enemy. He advanced within a rod, took a steady and deliberate aim, and fired just as the animal was ready to make the fatal spring. The shot lodged in the brain, killing it almost instantly. This has been one of the most daring acts ever known on Camas Prairie, and the boy deserves all the credit of a true, courageous marksman.

Fall is upon us, and the farmer is about ready to dispose of his products. Butter, beef, pork and hay are among the chief items that he must realize upon. The policy inaugurated by our merchants in the past, in giving East-ern ham and bacon the preference, seems to us to be ill-advised and narrow. There is no reason why Nevada and Northern California cannot put up as good meat as any Eastern house, an there is no reason why our merchants should not buy and pay as good a price for it as they do for Eastern meat. If our farmers are obliged to dispose of their products at a lower figure than the same article produced elsewhere, it is poor encouragement for them to try. Make one hand wash the other by civing our farmers a fair show giving our farmers a fair show.

Article X, Section 1, School Laws of the State of Idevada, says: "The County Superintendent shall appoint two competent persons, who, with himself, shall be and constitute a Board of Examination, of which he shall be the Chairman. Said Board shall be constituted for the purpose of examining applicants, and of granting certificates of qualification to teachers of public schools." This is but a little part of the law on the matter. We recommend the Judge to read the whole section.

The fact in the case is, that every County Superintendent in the State who does his duty does "examine teachers as to their qualifications as educators." If Judge Webster will make application at the proper time for a certificate to teach in the public schools of Washoe county, he will have an opportunity to learn from personal experience whether Superintendents have anything to do in the matter or not, both as to fact and as to law.

About half-past 7, when Chase Rettenhouse, a nephew of Mr. Beck, returned to the mill from up town to go to bed in the office, where he has been sleeping for the past two months, he was assaulted, fired upon and knocked down as he entered the mill from the south door. As usual he entered this door with his key, and, having a candle conveniently placed, after locking the door on the inside, he lit the candle, and made but a step or two, when, in turning a corner of one of the bins, he was saluted by a man in mask, who called him a vile name, and at the same time fired a pistol, which must have been aimed in his direction, for the shot took effect by knocking off the end of the little finger on the right hand. At ABOUT THE SAME TIME

Chase was struck on the head and knocked down, probably by the second man, although up to that time he had seen but the one. He was effectually gagged, his bands tied behind him, his egs tied together at the ankles, when be was draged by the shoulders over the milt floor, a distance of about one hundred feet to the office hear the west door of the building. In the office he was laid on the floor at the rear corner and his feet tied to the bed post. He was then warned to keep quiet or he would get his d—brains blowed out. The robbers next took a blanket from the bed and masked the window; next make a man feel buoyant for a time, but you will notice that the hair becomes dry and brittle afterward. The water and subsect in rubbing with a towl, dry time all in the roots, and in time the hair becomes dead and tops. In England people never that of washing the hair. A good on b and stiff brush are all that are needed to keep the head clean. The women often spend hours in combing out their hair, and that is the most laborious part of a maid's work. Instead of shampooing, English barbers use a machine shaped like a little barrel and covered with stiff bristles. This is run by a small gas engine, and will winnow every speck of dirt out of a man's head in a few minutes."

The robbers next took a blanket from the bed and masked the window; next they took a second blanket and fixed a acreen between themselves and Chase and then went to work on the safes, first on the large safe of the Mill Co., which is in the southeast corner. After drilling a hole through the steel doors they charged it with black powder and with fuse fired it, but as one of the robbers remarked it was a bungling job and did no execution, a second hole was made, charged and fired with black powder and with fuse fired it, but as one of the robbers remarked to with black powder and with fuse fired it, but as one of the robbers remarked to with black powder and with fuse fired it, but as one of the robbers remarked to have a sufficiently bulged to admit getting at the money drawer, which they broke open and cleaned out, but they no doubt were sadly disappointed, for the amount realized was less than thirty dollars, as Mr. Bole the window; next they took a second blanket and chase accomb banked then went to work on the safes, first on the large safe of the Mill Co., which is in the southeast corner. After drilling a hole through the steel doors they charged it with black powder and with fuse fired it, but as one of the robbers remarked it was a bungling job and did no execution, a second hole was made, charged and fired with better results, and th the room and is the private property of Mr. Beck and contained only his

PRIVATE BOOKS AND PAPERS. But no money whatever. This safe was drilled near the lock, and then with a drift bolt the lock was driven off the inside of the door, when a turn of the inside of the door, when a turn of the knob opened the door. Their bad luck in not finding coin here no doubt caused disgust, for the books and papers were all pulled out and tossed over the floor—nothing of value being found in this safe but the old-time gold watch of Beck's, which he has not carried for the last ten years, but was kept as a relic of old times. The watch is an English lever, gold hunting case, the number not being rehunting case, the number not being re-membered. On the whole, the damage to the two safes are the principal losses sustained.

Young Rittenhouse is quite badly shaken up this morning, as well be may be, for he has had an experience which does not fall to the lot of many. He is but a boy in years, although a man in size. He came here from Ohio mill at 8 o'clock last night, he was on his back, tied and gagged, where he was compelled to remain quiet and listen to the cracksmen only a few feet away. Here he endured misery for about seven hours, or until about 2 o'clock this morning, when the robbers got through and left without unbinding got through and left without unbinding their captive, although they had assured him that, if he gave no trouble, they would release him before leaving. After they had gone young Rettenhouse redoubled his efforts, and finally got his hands loose, and, with his pocket-knife, he soon freed himself, and at once went and informed his uncle across the river, where he arrived near 3 o'clock. The police were at once apprised, and it is loped that the guilty ones will soon be captured. The officers are of the opinion that the burglars have left town.

What a Pretty Baby. Is it a boy or girl? How often do we hear this remark and question. Yes, it is a pretty baby, but how bad its mother looks. She looks as if she were going right down. She is so thin and yellow, and her face is cov-ered with wrinkles and blotches. She seems so nervous and irritable, too: but it is easy to account for her condition. Childbirth has left her with prolapsus or other displacements, poisoned blood and a disordered state of the stomach and bowels. The best thing she can do is to use at once Dr.

The experience of years has lengs, with absolute safety for children or adults. The experience of years has proven it to be of inestimable value as a household medicine, and for professional use. Thousands of physicians and families testify to its great worth. Jas. E. Moling, Hillard, Ohio, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twelve years, and have found that, as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, or Sore Throats, it

Is Unequaled.

J. I. Miller, editor of the "Lutheran alone," Luray, Va., writes: "Fadvertise nothing that I do not know to be good. I was saved from the grave, I am cure, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and have recommended it to others with the bappiest results." L. J. Addison, M. D., Cnicago. Ill., writes: "I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice in medicine, any preparation of so great value as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs; and I constantly recommend it to my patients. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is effective in relieving the most agricults."

John J. Uhlman, Brooklyn, N.S., writes: "Twelve years ago, I was afflicted with a severe bronchial trouble, pronounced by a skilful physician to be very dangerous and liable to terminate in Pneumonis. After using one bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I found great relief, and an occasional use of it since that time has, I think, extended my life ten years at least." Mrs. V. M. Thebaud, Montreal, Canada, writes: "Last spring my daughter was attacked by membraneous croup, or diphtheria. The doctor prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which cured her of the diphtheria. STORY OF A NUGGET.

Lying snugly on an ebon-hued velvet cushion in the cabinet which occupies an alcove in the library of one of the most elegantly appointed and substantial mansions of San Francisco, there is a memento of the California of forty years ago—a silent remainder of days when the yellow idol, whose shrine was in the old river beds and among the rocky mountain sides of the then new land, counted his fiercely eager devotees by the thousand.

Several days ago business matters called a reporter to the residence in question and necessitated a lengthy interview with the genial gentleman whose home it is.

The reporter had risen to go when his The reporter had risen to go when his eyes chanced to catch a dull, yellow gleam from a glass-covered case close at hand. Another glance disclosed as the object which had attracted attention, a solid, massive nugget that bore every appearance of being virgin gold, and that certainly must have weighed enough to make its value seem a small fortune to the average man. the average man.

Considering that people, even wealthy ones, do not, as a general rule select such articles for bric-a-brac ornaments, curiosity was pardonable, and the reporter asked, with a quasi-apology for his in-would you mind telling me, Mr. why and how you choose that monster nugget for the place of honor in your

The response to the interrogatory was delayed for a moment, as the nugget's possessor mused in silence.

"Well, it is not a story that I often tell, because it makes me live over again the days that were often too bitter to make pleasant recollections, but I'll waive my scruples this time, young man, and tell you a little piece out of my life that that lump of gold was connected with. Sit down again and take a cigar, and I'll sattisfy your curiosity. Only I want it un-derstood that if you make a yarn out of this (as you probably will) you call no

The condition imposed was not ob-noxious, and the reporter's assent to it was willingly accorded.

Mr. —, who is, by the way, one of San Francisco's oldest and best known residents, a genuine pioneer, now rich, respected and honored, settled himself for a comfortable talk, and thus began:

"You most likely know what a motley crew it was that swarmed into California in the 'good old times,' as they called them. We were the representatives of nearly every grade and condition of society. Scions of the bluest blood aris-tocracy rubbed shoulders with gamblers and thieves from the slums; white-handed profess'onal men, doctors, lawyers and clergenen swung their picks and rocked their cradles in the same claim with burly roughs who couldn't read nor

"I was a healthy young chap; had been nicely brought up, was fairly well educa-ted, and was used to better pickings; but a roving strain in my blood, and a paternal purse that refused, from necessity, to respond any longer to my sometimes heavy demands, were responsible for my coming out here.

"Passing over the first few months, in which I learned what fare and mente were, at an expense that left me absolute-ly without a cent in the world, I'll begin with the time when I drifted somehow up to Carter's Bend, on the north fork of Feather River.

"When I walked into the place I was the dustiest-looking out-at-elbows tramp that ever trudged a California road dead broke, not enough dust to buy a short drink, no tools to work with, and desperately hungry. But the boys were too open-hearted in those days to let a poor fellow starve, and I was as happy as a king that night after I'd stuffed myself with fried bacon and pancakes, and had rolled myself up in an old army blanket in the corner of a good-natured miner's

"Next day the boys 'chipped in' and gave me enough of an outfit to make work possible. The diggings were new, and I had no difficulty in getting a claim that at least paid for my daily necessities. "Two or three weeks later I struck it rich and took enough out the first day to make me begin to think of home and a big bank account some day soon. I was only a youngster, and had worked myself already, and I was fool enough to tell all over camp about my good luck. Early the next morning I started for my hole and found it had been 'jumped.' "The two roughs who were profiting by my find were not disposed to be at all gracious, and, in a word, I was soon lying on the ground, with my head split open with a blow from a pick handle. "When I came to my senses I was in the cabin of a queer old fellow who had been more than commonly civil to me before.

"The effects of the thrashing I had received, and my previously weakened and exhausted condition, left me an easy prey to the fever that followed. For three weary months Jim (Jim Willis was my benefactor's name) nursed me as though I were his own child. He even fed me with his own hand, and when I was at the worst, for days and days he left his work untouched and sat by me, bathing my poor aching head.

"Twice he rode seventy miles over the mountains, and out of his scanty savings paid for a doctor to bring me the medicine that pulled me safely through the crisis of the disease Was it at all atrange that I grew to "Was it at all strange that I grew to look upon Jim as my best friend in the world, or that I loved him—yes, loved him—better than anylody or anything on earth? Why, I often thought that I would have died, and died gladly, for Jim. God bless the dear old fellow's memory! There never bestited a truer or a nobler gentleman than Jim.

"Finally, when I got to be strong enough to do something for myself, Jim came to me and said:

"Walter, my boy, we're on our last."

To up and the day fixed for the trial games, which all the European residents turned out to witness.

The teams were composed of Capt. Charles Marshall, Lieut. Pemberton, Lieut. R. Nicholetts, Mr. C. F. Amery, Dr. Leitner, Serdan Mohammed, Hyath Khan, the three Gilgittis and one other, and the game thus inaugurated, rapidly acquired popularity, clubs being established promptly at all the military stations.

The game was played with an energy,

"'Walter, my boy, we're on our last egs about. The claim's cleaned out, and hare's not a half dozen ounces in the and."

"To make a long story short, we were relocated a few days later in a place some twenty or twenty-five miles distant, where some big finds were being made. Our luck was almost phenomenal. Every night the buckskin sack in which we stored our treasure was made considerably heavier. This went on until we were ooth sure of realizing our utmost hopes of fortune. "One morning, the first thing after I imped into the hole, I turned up a nuget, a bowlder of pure gold that fairly get, a bowlder of pure gold that fairly took my breath away.

"I just knelt down and kissed its yellow sides and cried over it and acted like a crazy man. When Jim saw it he, too, want nearly wild; it was such a big one. We dith't work any more that day, but laid out under the trees with the nugget safe between us, plauning what we were going to do with our wealth.
"Some way or another, however, the nugget had brought over me a queer feeling of distrust of everybody around me. I fancied that every one in tamp wanted to rob me of my heavy hoard of dust. I even watched old Jim (I ought to have been struck dead for that), lest he should make away with the treasure.

"That night I was wakeful, knowing that the whole camp was aware of our great luck, and fearful that some of the more lawless crowd might attempt a robbery during the darkness.

"Some time along in the morning I awoke with the cold perspiration cozing from every pore. I felt, rather than knew, that something was wrong. I reached over to where Jim slept, and found his blankets—empty, next to where the treasure was buried. My hands could hardly perform their office as I tore up the earth. It was gone.

e earth. It was gone.
"I rushed out into the faint moonlight, Not a soul was in sight. I hurried back, got a revolver, slipped on boots and trousers and ran toward the nearest cabin, intending to give the alarm, but just as I passed a little thicket I saw Jim kneeling over what I knew instinctively was the stolen gold.

"Slipping softly up over the grass car-peted ground, I clutched my heavy re-volver by the barrel and raised it to strike.

"At that instant, and as the blow, aimed with all my strength, descended, there was a rush behind me, an oath, a shot, and I knew no more. "When I awoke Jim's lifeless body was lying near me covered with a rough blan-ket. A group of stern-faced miners stood about me, and as I arose I was seized and "When I collected my scattered wits enough to ask what it all meant, the answer was merely to point to the pistol still grasped in my hand and to the ugly wound that showed where a heavy blow had crushed in Jim's head. "Suffice it to say that the peculiar circumstances of the affair were such as to make my guilt doubtful, and that I found no difficulty in burrowing my way out of the shanty where I was confined over night. For days and weeks, I sup-pose, I roamed the hills, living on wild berries and sleeping in the underbrush, until I was fairly insane with grief and "I had killed Jim the man who had given me my life, the man to whom I had wed more than I ever could have repaid. Was his robbing me any justification of the crime? No. I would gladly have given him ten times as much if I could have brought him back to life.

"I think it must have been six months or more afterward that I went back to the scene of my crime. I had gone back to San Francisco and tried to start over again, but it was no use. Nightly I lived over again the horrors of that one night, and woke trembling so that my teeth fairly chattered. So I went back.

"It was evening when I reached the place and walked into the saloon where everybody used to congregate after the day's work was done.
"When I told who I was and said that I was ready to be punished as might seem most fitting, there was a silence of a minute or two, and then some one steppe up beside me, and looking curiously into my face, burst into a loud guffaw, and ejaculated:

"'Why, you darn fool, the chap who killed old Jim Willis was found next day layin'in the bushes, not a rod from where he did it, with his head cut open only lived long enough to say that he "And it was true.

"I had not killed Jim; I wasn't a mur derer, after all.

"The way of it was this: Jim had gone out quietly through the night, and dur-ing his absence the real thief had stolen into the cabin, dug up the gold and the nugget and stolen away with them. had met him and been killed in the struggle, and it was his murderer whom I struck and fatally wounded. An ac-complice, who had been on the watch, had tumbled me over.
"So that's why I hunted up the nugget, and I have kept it, as you see. The story is queer, perhaps, but it has the merit of being absolutely true, every word of it."

THE GAME OF POLO.

Where It Originated and the Growth of · Its Popularity. Polo, or hockey on horseback, as it is sometimes called, is the national game of the people of Gilgit, a mountainous country to the northeast of Cashmere. Reports had reached India, by way of Cashmere, that the Gilgittis were a race of blue eyed Kaffirs (unbelievers in Mohammed), and it was suggested that they were probably the descendants of one of Alexander's settlements, and to solve this question the Punjab government in the spring of 1866, deputed Dr. Gottlieb Liet-ner to visit the country and inquire into the history and language of the people. As far as concerns that matter, the language of Gilgit was proved to be a sister language of Sanscrit, and not like Hindi or Greek, a daughter language; but the point of interest for us is that Dr. Lietner took as much interest in the national game of polo as in the language, and persuaded three natives of the country to return with him to British India and bring their ponies and polo sticks along with them.

The party reached Sakou, the capital of The party reached saxon, the capital of the Punjab, sometime in August, 1866, and the game having been discussed at government house a couple of teams were got up and the day fixed for the trial games, which all the European residents

The game was played with an energy, and with such speedy ponies of Arab stock that severe casualties were frequent, so much so that considerable pressure was brought to bear on the army authorities to put a stop to it, but they wisely forebore, and the game was soon transplanted to English soil, where it flourished freely, throwing off vigorous shoots for transplantation in America and the British colonies. It is perhaps the most exciting and exhilarating game known, but it is only centaurs who can play it creditably and enjoy it thoroughly.
